

Business Card Case

By Wensdy Whitehead

Recommended Paper: sturdy 6" (15cm) square. You will also need at least one business card. A stack the size you want the case to hold is best. A dozen is good.

1. Visually center a business card (or small stack of business cards) on the square paper.

2. Wrap the sides around the card or stack of cards. A stack is the best way to allow for the thickness of the stack, but leaving slack works, too.

3. Remove biz card(s).

4. Pinch the center line.

5. Roof fold.

6. Re-insert biz card(s), this time upside down with the top edge of the card sticking out.

7. Adjust how much of the card should be visible when the case is opened.

8. Wrap around the stack of cards or judge slack as before if only one card.

9. Wrap around the stack of cards or judge slack as before if only one card.

10. Pre-crease.

11. Unfold.

12. Squash open.

13. Tuck the corners in as far as possible.

14. Tuck in the top and it's all set to go.

15. Done. Exact appearance will vary depending on how thick the stack of business cards.
